broadcast regularly scheduled reports of the policies and objectives of the United Nations in this new conflict.

At the outset of the campaign, there were less than half a dozen psychological warfare experts, as such, on duty in the United States Army. This was a result of the rapid demobilization of psychological warfare units immediately following World War II. However, it wasn't long before the Army General Staff realized the seriousness of this deficit. Viewing objectively the possibility of a protracted conflict, they set to work to re-establish "psywar," as it is known, into an effective force in our national defense team.

Today, official reports from United Nations Headquarters in Japan and Korea tions Headquarters in Japan and Korea disclose that every week more than 15,-000,000 leaflets are being showered down upon enemy cities, towns, villages, and front-line military installations. The Army General School at Fort Riley, Kansas, was selected as the new psychological warfare training center, and it was there that a small handful of officers began laying plans for a school to train a new generation of PsyWar officers and enlisted men. This week—details are reported elsewhere in this issue — the Army made public a list of selections for promotion to the permanent rank of major general. General Sturgis was among the officers to be considered by the board.

On the basis of his distinguished service record since graduation from West Point in June 1918 and in view of the key assignment which he now fills, General Sturgis obviously merits permanent two-star status. He has been a temporary major general since 10 April 1949.

The fact that his name is not included in the selection list, which had White House approval before its release, means apparently, that he will receive permanent.

Therefore, the prediction is made that General Sturgis will be named Chief of Engineers and will be given a temporary promotion to the rank of lieutenant general upon General Pick's retirement this

General Sturgis, who was 55 years of age on 16 July, is the son of Maj. Gen. Samuel D. Sturgis, who commanded the 87th Division in World War I. His grandfather was Brevet Maj. Gen. Samuel D. AF Reveals Criteria For New Promotions

The Air Force late this week revealed criteria which will be used in selecting Regular and Reserve officers for tem-porary promotions to captain, major, lieutenant colonel and colonel. This will be the only temporary promotion program in the current fiscal year.

Hundreds of officers will be selected and placed on eligibility lists. Promotions will be made from these lists as vacancies occur

The rapidity of the actual promotions will depend largely on the success or failure of the Department of Defense to convince Congress of the need to repeal the Davis Amendment to the fiscal year 1953 Appropriations Bill.

Reports of eligibles as of 30 Nov. 1952 are due in USAF Headquarters on or about 29 December. It is planned that command quotas will be released on or about 31 Dec.

Selection boards then are expected to meet shortly after the New Year at ma-jor command headquarters.

All officers to be considered must be serving on active duty in their current grade since 1 July 1952.

Here are the criteria as announced at Allied warships blasted Communist positions at the eastern terminal of the land battle line. They also hit enemy targets in the Wonsan area of the east coast, and shore batteries and other Red installations on the west coast. Carrier planes hit industrial targets and lines communication throughout

Land planes of the Far East Air Force bombed a high military headquarters of the Reds at Sopo, and pounded Commu-nist troop and supply assembly points. Rail and highway traffic was interdicted by night-flying light bombers, which de-stroyed numerous enemy rail cars and road vehicles.

Sniper Ridge Fight

The South Koreans were not content to leave the enemy in control of this key position, and on Wednesday mounted a strong counter-attack, and won back the ridge line in a hard-fought, hand-to-hand ridge line in a hard-fought, hand-to-hand battle, routing two battalions of Chinese Reds. General Mark W. Clark, USA, Far East Commander, has written General O. P. Weyland, USAF, Commanding General, Far East Air Forces, to extend appreciation to the 4th and 51st Fighter Inter-ceptor Wings for "superior performance." The text of General Clark's letter is published herewith.

"Dear O. P.:

"I have noted that during the period 30 August to 19 September 1952 the 4th and 51st Fighter Interceptor Wings of the Fifth Air Force destroyed 42 MIG aircraft, probably destroyed three others and damaged 35 others. Additional claims pending gun film assessment are seven destroyed, one probably destroyed and nine damaged. This enviable record was attained with a loss of only six F-86 aircraft against an enemy air force which enjoys a substantial numerical superiority in jet fighter interceptor aircraft. Furthermore, the fight was carried to the nemy deep in his territory where he could superiority in jet lighter interceptor aircratt. Furthermore, the fight was carried to the enemy deep in his territory where he could literally choose to fight on his own terms and terminate engagements at his will by crossing the Yalu into his Manchurian sanctuary.

"The magnificent accomplishments of the 4th and 51st Fighter Interceptor Wings permitted our fighter-bombers to continue the program of destruction of enemy military installations with relatively little air opposiinstallations with relatively little air opposi-tion. The results that have been obtained constitute a very substantial contribution to the UNC effort in Korea and reflect the highest professional competence of the 4th and 51st Fighter Interceptor Wings and the courage and skill of their individual mem-

"I take great pride in commanding such capable air units which can always be depended upon to 'get the job done."
"Request that my appreciation for this superior performance be forwarded to the Commanding Officers of the 4th and 51st fighter Interceptor Wings through the Commanding General of the Fifth Air Force.
"Sincerely,"

"Sincerely, /s/ MARK MARK W. CLARK, General, United States Army."

Navy Role, Says SecNav, "To Support The Army"

Secretary of the Navy Dan A. Kimball said this week that the role of both the Navy and the Air Force is to support the Army because, in the final analysis, wars are won on the ground.

Speaking before the New York Council of the Navy League on 27 Oct., Secretary Kimball said he thinks it is "important that people understand the mission of the Navy in connection with the missions of our other services.

He said it did not want it to appear "that the Navy can decide wars, because finally, every war has to be won on the ground." For that reason, he noted, "the mission of the Navy and of the Air Force is really to support the Army.'

is really to support the Army."
Discussing Korea at the Navy Day celebration, Mr. Kimball said he would not argue "whether or not we should have fought in Korea." He declared that "we had to draw the line some place, and we chose to do this in Korea. In my opinion, if we had not fought in Korea, we would now be fighting somewhere else, possibly Japan, the Philippines, or elsewhere in

The Navy Secretary said the policies followed by the United States since World War II "have been sound" and that they must be continued "if we hope to avert World War Three."

Taking a slap at critics of Defense planning, Mr. Kimball said, "The exploitation of untruths for propaganda purposes is not confined to those who control the Soviet printing presses and the Kremlin loudspeaker. Here at home, for partisan political purposes, it is be-ing alleged that your government in Washington is being run loosely and in-competently."

These stories, he declared, are a "dasare a "das-tardly reflection" on the "men and wom-en who wear the uniform of the services and civil service employees who staff our military departments" and "make it diffi-cult for the government to secure the services of the best qualified people."

Defense Dept. Issues Policy For Voluntary Retirements

The Department of Defense this week made available a new directive concern-ing voluntary retirement of Regular officers of the Army, Navy, Air Force and Marine Corps.

The directive relates to the provision in the Appropriations Bill which stipulates that retirement of such officers cannot be effected "unless such member was not be effected "unless such member was retired because of being unfit to perform the duties of his office, rank, grade, or rating by reason of physical disability incurred in line of duty, or achieving the age at which retirement is required by law, or whose application is approved in writing by the Secretary of Defense stating that the retirement is in the best interests of the Service, or, is required to avoid cases of individual hardship.'

The following is the complete text of the Department of Defense Directive 1332.2, 27 Oct., on this subject:

I. Purpose

The purpose of this directive is to furnish policy guidance to the military departments for compliance with the foregoing provision which is effective for fiscal year 1953.

II. Policy

for compliance with the foregoing provision which is effective for fiscal year 1953.

II. Policy

For the purpose of complying with the aforementioned provision, the following is submitted for guidance in interpreting the terms "in the best interests of the service" and "cases of individual hardship."

(1) Special consideration shall be given to cases where application for retirement has been made in good faith, prior to the original enactment of the provision by the Congress on 12 October 1951, and wherein said applicath has taken steps in anticipation of his retirement which would result in individual hardship in the event that such application were not now approved.

(2) In cases in which an application for voluntary retirement is made, wherein the applicant's involuntary retirement or elimination from the active list, by operation of law, except for statutory age, is imminent, his retirement may be construed as being in the best interest of the service.

(3) The respective Service Secretaries, before submitting applications for voluntary retirement involving the best interest of the service for the approval of the Secretary of Defense, should consider such factors as age in grade, usefulness to the service, the effects on the service of retention visa-vis retirement in the best interests of the service. In each instance, there should be an affirmative showing that the application of a given member falls within the terms of "in the best interests of the service" as provided in the Act.

(4) Applications for voluntary retirement approved by the respective Secretaries and forwarded to the Secretary of Defense which are based upon individual hardship shall be accompanied by a statement setting forth all pertinent facts justifying the recommendation. Generally, these cases will be based upon considerations involving financial hardship or compassionate reasons. It is recognized that each case must be judged upon its individual merits and that no inflexible criteria can be prescribed.

(5) Applications for retirem

Gen. Andrus Retires

A colorful retreat review marked the retirement of Maj. Gen. Clift Andrus and Col. Frederick S. Matthews at Ft. Meade, Md., yesterday as the Second Army said farewell to its Deputy Commander and Assistant Chief of Staff for Per-

General and Mrs. Andrus will reside at the Dorchester House, 2480 16th Street N. W., Washington, D. C., while Colonel and Mrs Matthews will make their home at 411 Woodbine, Towson, Md.

General Andrus began his miltary career more than 40 years ago when he was commissioned a second lieutenant in field artillery at Fort Leavenworth, Kansas, the same post where he was born in 1890. During his long years of active duty, he served in positions of increasing responsibility both with troops and staff assignments includ-ing service as a member of the War De-partment General Staff. In World War II, he was commander of artillery and later commanding general of the "Fight-ing First" Infantry Division which carved a path of victory through hard lands in Tunisia, Sicily, Normandy, Northern France, Ardennes, Rhineland and Cen-tral Europe. In 1946, he returned to the United States to become commandant of the Artillery School at Ft. Sill, Okla. In 1949, he was assigned to the Organization and Training Division. General Staff, U. S. Army at Washington, D. C. and two months later became director of that divi-sion. It was from this post that he was appointed deputy commanding general of the Second Army and transferred to Fort Meade in March, 1950.

In World War II, Colonel Matthews first commanded the U. S. Task Force assigned to British Guiana and later headed the British Guiana Base Command. In 1943 he became G-1 Third Army mand. In 1943 he became G-1 Third Army and accompanied that famous command to England. As a member of George L. Patton's staff he participated in the campaigns of Northern France, Normandy, Rhineland, Ardennes-Alsace and Central Europe. After the war, Colonel Matthews returned to this country as a marker of the Staff and Frankler, the member of the Staff and Faculty of the Command and General Staff College, Ft. Leavenworth, Kansas. From this assignment he was transferred to his last post as G-1, Second Army.

Navy vs. Notre Dame

Navy, after battling to a 7-7 tie with Penn last week-end at Philadelphia, will oppose Notre Dame today at Cleveland in what promises to be one of the most difficult-to-predict games of the season. Both the Irish and the Midshipmen have won three games this year. Each team has lost one game, and both have tied their only common opponent, Penn, by the same score.

However, Navy's show of strength in the Penn game was little short of phe-nomenal. After the trouncing by Maryland the week-end previously, the Mid-shipmen ranks were still badly damaged when they faced the Quakers. Gone from the lineup were ace tackles Don Fullam, Hugh Webster and Jack Perkins, as well as Navy's place kicking expert Ned Sny-der. Despite these handicaps, the Mid-shipmen prevented unbeaten Penn from crossing the goal line time after time.

crossing the goal line time after time. The single Quaker score came in the first quarter after Penn recovered a fumble by Don Fisher on the Midshipmen three. Navy scored in the third period when Steve Schoderbek took over as quarterback and led the Midshipmen in a 94 yard march which ended in a 33-yard touchdown pass to Fred Franco. Bob Hempel booted the extra point to make it 7-7, and that was the final score of the game. Next week the Midshipmen play Duke at Durham, N. C.

Re-Open Commissions For Marine Enlisted Men

Thousands of Marine enlisted men were made eligible this week for appoint-ment to officer rank, as the Corps an-nounced a new temporary commissioning program with greatly reduced require

Headquarters said it will select "up to Headquarters said it will select "up to 500 men" under a new program which lowered the minimum GCT score by 10 points and the educational requirement by four years. To be eligible for the new program, Marine enlisted men will be required to have a minimum GCT of only 110 and a high school education or the equivalent. equivalent.

The temporary appointments in the rank of second lieutenant are open to men of the top four enlisted grades and to both warrant grades. Applicants must be 20 years of age and less than 30 on 1 January.

They must be high school graduates or must have made a satisfactory score on the U. S. Armed Forces Institute Gen-eral Educational Development Test at the high school level. Men whose service record indicates completion of four years of high school are considered qualified. Those who require the GED test may arrange to take it locally through their special service agency.

In addition, applicants must be citizens of the U. S.; physically qualified for appointment; and agree, in the case of Reservists, to serve 24 months on active duty after acceptance of the appointment. They also must be recommended by their commanding officer by endorse-ment upon their application.

All applications must be received at Marine Corps Headquarters prior to 12 Jan. 1953.

In announcing the "completely new the announcing the "completely new temporary officer program," Headquarters said, "no further action will be taken" on applications which were received under previous programs. All sergeants who are selected for appointment will be promoted to staff sergeant immediately prior to commissioning.

Naval Aviation Pilots who are selected will retain their flight status upon acceptance of appointment.

All selectees will be ordered to a fivemonth special basic course for officers at Quantico, Va., where they will be instructed in leadership, infantry tactics and basic weapons. Upon completion of the course, they will be assigned immediately to the Fleet Marine Force for initial tours of duty.

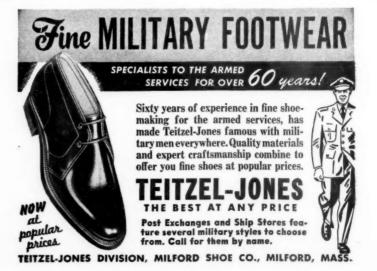

The program, Headquarters said, "is not designed as a means to return personnel to Korea for a second tour of duty." Those who are now serving in a combat zone and who are selected for appointment "will not be ordered" to Quantico until 90 days after their selections or work completion of their tour. tion, or upon completion of their tour of duty, whichever is earlier.

THE JOURNAL learned, unofficially, that the Corps is making plans to re-test men who made less than 110 on the GCT and who now believe that they could better that score.

New Rules Issued for Accident Information

The Department of Defense this week issued a directive aimed at speeding, where possible, the release of information concerning military personnel involved in accidents

The full text of the Department's announcement follows:

I. Purpose

This directive establishes uniform Department of Defense policy on the release of information concerning military personnel involved in accidents within the continental United States.

United States.

II. Accidents Within Armed Forces
Installations
In all cases of accidents within the confines of installations of the armed forces:
A. Public release of names and addresses of killed or injured military personnel may be withheld until such time as the next of kin can reasonably be expected to have received the official notification of the accident;
B. Every effort should be made, however, to release such names and addresses simultaneously with, or as soon thereafter as possible, the release of the accident news itself, so as to remove or lessen the anxiety of relatives of other personnel on the installation.

III. Accidents Outside Armed Forces

so as to remove or lessen the anxiety of relatives of other personnel on the installation.

III. Accidents Outside Armed Forces
Installations

In all cases of accidents outside the confines of installations of the armed forces:

A. If military personnel figure in accidents involving civilian or military automobiles, trains, commercial or private airplanes, or in any other types of accidents, with the exception of III C below, the names and addresses of the military personnel should be released immediately upon identification;
B. If the accidents involve military airplanes which crash in or upon the borders of cities or towns, or which cause civilian casualties or appreciable damage to property—that is, if there has been a major invasion of the civilian domain—the names and addresses of the military personnel should be released immediately upon identification; if classified equipment is involved, normal precautions should be observed with respect to the equipment;

C. If the accidents involve military airplanes which crash in localities remote from populated areas, involve no civilian casualties, and cause no appreciable property damage—that is, if there has been no major invasion of the civilian domain—names and addresses of the military personnel may be ficers could be retired as a result of the action

Establishment of an annual board of this type is made mandatory by the 1950 revisions to the Officer Personnel Act of 1947. However, due to a clause in the Act, only one such board has been convened previously. The revised sections of the Act specify that all Navy flag officers of the Line who are unrestricted in the performance of duty and who have com-pleted five years in grade and 35 years' total service must be considered if they are to remain on active duty.

At least two other senior admirals also would be considered by the board ex-cept for the fact that they will reach the statutory retirement age early year. They are: Vice Admiral Walter S. Delany, Commander, Eastern Sea Frontier, and Rear. Adm. Ralph O. Davis, both of whom will be retired on 1 Feb.

When the question arose as to Admiral Fechteler's eligibility for consideration by the board, THE JOURNAL asked the Navy Judge Advocate General's office for clarification and was advised that "all flag officers come under the provisions of the retention board law regardless of the Army Navy Air Force Journal 1 November 1952 assignment which they hold." No specific assignment which they hold. To specific reference was made to Admiral Fechte-ler in the JAG ruling, but the CNO has completed more than 36 years' service and will complete more than seven years in flag rank next January. The original legislation which estab-lished retention board in favor of the Navy's old "plucking" process (by which officers were selected for "forced" retirement) was framed by the Bureau of Naval Personnel at the request of President Truman. The plan was designed to provide an equitable flow of promotion of captains into flag rank. Officers who become eligible for retention are selected on a year-to-year basis.

MENERAL MOTORS engineers are never satisfied with the results of laboratory tests alone.

That's why we have three proving grounds where cars, trucks and military vehicles are tested under conditions that duplicate actual service.

In addition, Allison operates a fourth -aproving ground in the air.

At our flight test facility on Weir Cook Airport in Indianapolis, experimental and production models of Allison turbine engines are mounted in flying test beds in latest combat type aircraft and put through their paces under actual flight conditions.

Over and above this, Allison has invested in its own Convair Liner to evaluate and demonstrate the application of Turbo-Prop engines in military and commercial transports. Allison engines have powered the Turbo-Liner on more than 150 individual flightsand the program of testing and development continues.

This actual flight testing of Allison engines helps explain their constant improvement in thrust, in fuel economy, in endurance and, in fact, all the factors that spell dependable, high-output performance.

Speed Base Construction

Award of a contract to a group of construction contractors organized to expedite and supervise construction of bases for use by the Air Force in France, is announced by Secretary of the Air Force Thomas K. Finletter.

Generally the Corps of Engineers, U.S. Army, is the construction agent for the Air Force. Under NATO commitments, however, the Corps of Engineers does not participate in construction for the Air orce in Europe.

Known as "Construction Management and Engineering Associates," (CMEA), with offices at 140 Cedar Street, New York City, the group is composed of the contracting companies of Raymond Concrete Pile Company, New York City; Brown and Root, Inc., Houston, Tex., and the Walsh Construction Company, New York

A management group of CMEA will be assigned to Headquarters, U. S. Air Force in Europe, at Weisbaden, Germany, and will report directly to Maj. Gen. T. H. Landon, Deputy Commander-in-Chief, Assistant Chief of Staff for Installations, USAFE, Maj. Gen. Colby M. Meyers.

Under terms of the contract, CMEA will be required to provide a technical review and analysis of air base construction plans, criteria and specifications and to make recommendations for revisions, improvements or other changes. In addition, it will furnish Headquarters, USAFE, with managerial supervision of physical construction operations at each base site construction operations at each base site including a comparison of construction progress relative to established schedules and recommendations related to increased economy and efficiency. CMEA also will prepare cost estimates for various construction projects and will compare these estimated costs with actual bid prices. bid prices

Widow Accepts Award

The 1952 Thurman H. Bane Award, given annually by the Institute of Aeronau-tical Sciences in recognition of outstanding achievements in aeronautical develop ment, was presented posthumously to Maj. Patrick L. Kelly, USAF, in cere-monies 25 Oct., at the Air Research and Development Command's Wright Air De-velopment Center, Dayton, Ohio.

Major Kelly's widow, Mrs. Virginia O. Kelly of Midland, Texas, received the award from Brig. Gen. Albert Boyd, USAF, commanding general of Wright Air Development Center. The award consists of a citation and an honorarium of $200.

The 1952 award to Major Kelly was for The 1952 award to Major Kelly was for development of techniques providing for artificial stability and control of aircraft during high performance phases of aircraft operation. The Institute of Aeronautical Sciences also gave its 1952 Award to Mr. Henry Seeler of Wright Air Development Center's Aeromedical Laboratory for his development of a high altitude respirator. Both awards were for tude respirator. Both awards were for the Air Force's research and develop-ment program.

The system devised by Major Kelly in-corporates the use of a combined control boost and automatic pilot. The control stability and maneuverability achieved by this system led to its adoption by the Air Force and represents an important advance in aircraft control. Major Kelly was killed in an aircraft crash near Day ton in November, 1951.

Nat. Gd. Needs 300 Pilots For Planes and 'Copters

The Army National Guard has immediate vacancies for about 300 aviators and this number will be increased considerably when higher aircraft allotments, including helicopters, are authorized for Guard units.

Maj. Gen. Raymond H. Fleming, Chief, National Guard Bureau, reports that un-der the new program, 26 aircraft instead of the current 18 will be authorized for each of the 25 National Guard infantry divisions

This authorization will include 13 two-place fixed wing planes, three multi-placed fixed wing aircraft and 10 utility helicopters.

Army aviation also will be assigned, for the first time, to Army Guard non-divisional units. Field artillery observation battalions of the Army Guard will he authorized three helicopters each.

Additional aircraft, including the helicopters of which none now is possessed by Guard units, will be delivered to units as soon as they become available after authorization.

Repatriation of POW's. The United Nations' and the United States' insistence upon voluntary repatriation of prisoners of war - which the Communists say is the one single issue holding up the Korean truce-is based soundly on both idealism and realism.

One of the fundamentals of the ideology of the free nations is the recognition of the dignity and rights of the individual. This is in direct opposition to the Communist doctrine of the subservience of the individual to the State. This Red doctrine is the basis of the insistence of the Communist truce negotiators at Panmunjom that all prisoners of war must be returned to their homeland, even if it is necessary to use force. We already know that of 121,000 Red Chinese and North Koreans now in UN prison camps, 38,000 have asserted that they do not want to go back to their Communist masters and have declared that they will forcibly resist such repatriation. They know, and we know, that their return would only be followed by punishment and possible death for their disaf-

From a realistic standpoint, the United Nations' negotiators have an eye to the future. By insisting on preserving the rights of the individuals, they are serving notice not only to the Red Chinese and the North Koreans but to all the peoples of Russia and her satellites that in any future armed conflict we will protect and defend the rights of prisoners of war who surrender to our forces and of those civilians who cooperate with us. This is the soundest kind of propaganda. It weakens the hold of the totalitarian state upon its armed forces and its citizens. It lays the groundwork for that crumbling within which is always the forerunner in the defeat of a nation. It is stark military realism.

Diplomatically, the Communists are on unsound ground. They claim that voluntary repatriation is in violation of international law and international practice. This assertion was effectively demolished by Secretary of State Acheson in his address to the UN Assembly. Starting with the treaty of Brest-Litovsk and running through 17 agreements into which the Communist government of the USSR has entered with other nations, Mr. Acheson pointed out how this principle has been repeatedly recognized and accepted by the Kremlin. "Prisoners of war of both parties," says the Brest-Litovsk treaty, "will be released into their homeland in so far as they do not, with the consent of the capturing state, desire to remain in the latter's territory or betake themselves into another country." Like provisions are contained in USSR pacts with Denmark, France, Britain, Poland, Turkey, and Austria as well as in the Communist ultimatums to German forces at Stalingrad and in the Budapest area in World War II.

As fervently as the people of the United States and of the other nations of the free world want peace, they do not want it at the sacrifice of so basic and significant a principle.

Budget Cuts. Everyone concerned with the National Defense must be distressed at the rivalry between the two great political parties over who can make the greater cuts in the security budget. It is inherent in our democratic system that in an election year the candidates will appeal to the hopes and wishes of the vot-The American people, including all the members of the Armed Forces, hope for peace, for the reduction in taxes that would follow a cut in Armed Forces, and for a stable domestic economy. It is up to the American people to make clear their willingness to pay the price in taxes for the security of their lives and property. Regardless of which party wins the election on next Tuesday, it appears from the campaign speeches that there will be an effort to cut the funds for men and material for National Defense. Therefore, there must be a clear assertion by the people that they believe in preparedness and are willing to pay the price for genuine security.

Taxing Retired

Editor, THE JOURNAL:

I would like to answer the question raised in the letter signed "Taxpayer" published in the 4 Oct. issue of THE JOURNAL

It has been my understanding that the law exempting Officers retired because of physical disability was no "act of generosity," but an acknowl-edgment that Officers so retired were supposed to be physically incapaci-tated to the extent that they could not pursue any gainful occupation in retirement, in order to supplement

Such is my case. At a glance I am one of those who "show no more evidence of disability than others denied the boon of tax exemption." But, I the boon of tax exemption." But, I was retired in mid 1942, after much hospitalization—and after the Surgeon General ruled that I was "not fit for limited service." And, "Taxpayer" must know what has happened to my 1942 retired dollar!

I agree with "Taxpayer" as to "jockeying that went on at the close of hostilities for disability retirement"—and there were many who went on the retired list with two and three grades in temporary rank above their permanent grade. But, I do not like the "dog in the manger" attitude and the suggestion that the logical remedy would be to "abolish all exemptions" if all can't be given exemption.

Wouldn't the logical remedy be to abolish the exemption of all who are earning additional income? And possibly also of those who can be shown by a physical check-up to be physically able to do so, if they are under 60 years of age. For, unless a retired Officer has a name big enough to sell to Business or Industry there is no place for him after he passes the sixty mark.

RA Resignations

An article in your 6 Sept. issue outlines the planned early release from AD of many Army Reserve offi-

Why does the Department of the Army then refuse to accept the resignations of those of us in the RA who no longer desire to retain our com-missions? We are asked to remain on AD indefinitely with no hope of release because of an emergency which evidently does not exist at all or exists only for a select few of us.

BEWILDERED LT., RA.

GREATLY expanded promotion pol-A GREATLY expanded promotion policy will probably be put into operation within the Marine Corps sometime next summer to reflect more realistically the Corps' force requirements.

Planned for the current fiscal year, to Planned for the current fiscal year, to give the Corps the added officer strength it needs to man three divisions and three wings, the promotion step-up was thwarted by the restricting provisions of the Davis Amendment. This obstacle is expected to be tossed aside by the 83d Congress when it is called on to approve the 1954 military budget and the Corps the 1954 military budget, and the Corps will be able to go forward with promotions in all ranks.

Last June, President Truman approved special regulations for the temporary ap-pointment and promotion of Marine officers under the terms of the World War II Temporary Promotion Act. This legis-lation, when the crippling restrictions of lation, when the crippling restrictions or the Davis Amendment are removed, will enable the Corps to make promotions without reference to a "promotion zone" or to "distribution within grades." Quotas will be established in whatever numbers the Corps determines will be necessary to meet its needs.

Indications are that the Corps will use this legislation to institute the most liberal (and, at the asme time, realistic) promotion policies (on a temporary basis) which it has had since World War II ended. Support for this theory was evidenced by the selection last spring of 2,810 new captains and 1,563 majors, all under the new temporary pro-motions plan and before the Davis Amendment clamped its damaging hold on distribution by ranks.

Although the new quotas which will be set up for next July and after are not known, it is apparent that they will be considerably higher than those now in use. General Shepherd believes that the 'changed conditions" which face the Marine Corps today "require officers of high-er rank in key executive and staff posi-tions." Some of the changes which may be expected are:

De expected are:

—Three-star rank may be given to the Assistant Commandant for Air. With the addition of a third air wing to the Corps, it is considered a logical step to up-grade this billet, thereby giving it parity with the other Assistant Commandant post and removing the precessity for a mice. and removing the necessity for a major general (the assignment is currently held by Maj. Gen. William O. Brice) to direct the work of three other senior major generals. One of the wings is commanded at present by a brigadier general, but the Wing structure calls for two-star rank at the top. Prior to the Davis Amendment, the Corps had planned the creation of a new three-star billet for its expanding new three-star blifet for its expanding air arm, but it now appears that this plan has been abandoned in favor of transferring the rank from some other post — possibly from the Marine Corps post — possibly from the Marine Corps Schools at Quantico with the retirement of Lt. Gen. Clifton B. Cates.

—Additional numbers may be added to both the major general and brigadier general ranks. When the Commandant created the new Marine General Staff early this year, three general officers were added to the Headquarters rolls. Observational Caronal Sheard will sent ers believe General Shepherd will want ers believe General Shepherd will want to return at least that number of general officer billets to the field commands, as soon as possible. Also, the continued 'parcelling out' of general officers to duties with agencies outside the Marine Corps makes obvious the necessity for additional numbers in these ranks.

-Larger quotas also are expected in the rank of colonel for this reason. At present the Corps has 119 senior colonels who are assigned to joint boards, the Central are assigned to joint boards, the Central Intelligence Agency, the Office of the Secretary of Defense, NATO, the Navy Department, SHAPE, and other billets outside the Corps. General Shepherd has noted that, for this reason alone, the Corps' needs are greater. However, the restrictions of the Davis Amendment acted as an additional drain on the number of officers in the ton field grade and ber of officers in the top field grade and the Corps has made no promotions to colonel for the past 12 months. Whether a board will be convened during the remaining 60 days of this year is still not known. However, it appears likely that anywhere from 175 to 250 colonels will have to be named by the fiscal 1954 board if the Corps is to provide adequate num-bers in this grade to sustain its present structure.

—With its authority for unlimited temporary promotions reinstituted, the Corps is expected to establish similarly high promotion quotas for all Marine ranks. General Shepherd has said 'it is ranks. General Shepherd has said 'it is not fair' to hold down the promotion of officers and NCO's if they are doing their job. He has stated emphatically that 'Utilizing officers of lower grades than called for by the approved force structure is certainly not in the best interest of military efficiency."

This problem becomes more and more acute as the three Marine divisions and acute as the three Marine divisions and three air wings (with their supporting elements) continue to build toward full elements) continue to build toward full strength. If proper ranks are to be found to man the Marine Corps force structure, a realistic promotion policy appears to be the only answer, and one which the Corps will make every effort to achieve as soon as possible after the start of the new fiscal year next July.

FOREIGN AFFAIRS

THE Korean war was the main topic for consideration this week by the powerful Political Committee of the General Assembly of the United Nations at New York. The discussion was opened late last week by Secretary of State Dean Acheson. who spoke for two and one-half hours in support of a resolution, sponsored by a number of non-Communist countries, confirming actions previously taken by the United Nations in Korea, and calling upon the enemy to accept truce terms proffered by the Allied negotiators at Panmunjom.

Mr. Acheson gave a calm and reasoned narrative and analysis of the development of events leading to military operations in Korea, showing conclusively that Russia was directly responsible for the conflict. He detailed the elements involved in the truce negotiations at Panmunjom, and approved the attitude of the Allies with respect to voluntary repatriation of Red war prisoners. The Secretary demolished the Communist argument for forced repatriation by citing provisions of 17 different formal treaties and similar pacts, negotiated or proposed by the Soviet Union, in each of which clauses relating to repatriation of war prisoners were four-square with the Allied Panmunjom proposal. The principle of voluntary repatriation was clearly confirmed by the Soviet Union in each document, in which it was provided that prisoners might return to their homeland, remain in the territory of their captors, or migrate to another country, according to their wishes.

MR. ACHESON REPORTED that Allied forces now hold about 121,000 Communist military prisoners. Of these some 83,000, including 6,400 Chinese, have expressed a desire to go home. The remaining 38,000, including 14,000 Chinese, said they would forcibly resist any attempt to compel them to return to Red control. These prisoners fear that if forced to return they would be subjected to cruel punishment, possibly death.

The presentation of the American Secretary of State was warmly praised and immediately endorsed by non-Communist members of the United Nations. Soviet Foreign Minister Andrei Vishinski, who was expected to reply immediately, delayed his address for several days until Wednesday, 29 October, apparently awaiting instructions from the Kremlin.

In his reply to Secretary Acheson Mr. Vishinski offered a new resolution, proposing that the United Nations create a commission to take immediate measures for a peaceful settlement of the Korean conflict, the commission to be composed of "the parties directly involved," and of other states not participating in the war. This would indicate that representation would include North and South Korea. and possibly Communist China, but would seem to exclude the United States and other nations having troops in Korea, though this is not specifically stated. The way would be open to include Russia and other non-participating countries.

Mr. Vishinski ridiculed Mr. Acheson's presentation, saying it was made for political effect in the current Presidential election. He renewed the charge that South Korea started the war by invading North Korea, at the instigation of John Foster Dulles, former State Department adviser.

Admitting the accuracy of Mr. Acheson's citations from Soviet treaties supporting the principle of voluntary repatriation advocated by the Allies in exchange of Korean war prisoners, the Soviet foreign minister countered by quoting from a United States treaty with Spain, from World War I peace treaties, and from a recent pact with Italy, which did not contain such provisions. Some of the Soviet treaties cited by Mr. Acheson, he said, were made during World War I, and were imposed on Russia, not initiated by the Soviet Union. The inclusion of such clauses in these pacts, he insisted, indicated that they were exceptions to the general rules and principles of the Geneva convention.

In the meantime the United States delegation to the General Assembly denied rumors that sub rosa discussions were in progress with Russian representatives in a new effort to find some new solution to the Korean problem. It was pointed out that in the past year there had been several fruitless efforts to interest the Soviet foreign office in promoting a Korean peace. However, there was a hint from the Indian delegation that some delicate and highly secret talks were possible presumably at Peiping and Moscow, between Red leaders and Indian diplomats.

In Korea there were no truce developments, as the long-stalled armistice conference remained in recess, with considerable uncertainty as to whether discussions would ever be resumed. A new riot in a war prison camp resulted in the death of one prisoner and the injury of many others, as two platoons of American soldiers entered an enclosure and suppressed the disturbance. This brought the usual protest from Red representatives at Panmunjom, Current Red military activity on the western and central sectors of the war front is generally regarded as an effort to influence action on the diplomatic front at the current meeting of the General Assembly of the United Nations at New York

HARD FIGHTING IN INDO-CHINA this week involved French and loyal native troops in a hard struggle with aggressive Communist troops of the Viet Minh rebels. The Reds last week launched a strong offensive which has met with considerable initial success. French paratroopers were flown to the front in vain, piecemeal efforts to halt the Communist advance. Several French units were cut off, and outposts were captured by the enemy. The Red drive is better organized than has been the case in the past, and the Communists appear to be better armed and equipped than formerly. While the French are concerned over the current situation, they do not believe the enemy has the capability of long continuing a sustained offensive, which would have to be supported by a lengthening line of communications from China over a most difficult route.

Measures to strengthen the external security of the Philippines and the over-all defense of Southeast Asia were discussed and agreed upon this week by representatives of the United States and the Philippines at a conference in Manila. Military, economic, and political matters, covering a wide range of subjects, were considered. While the conclusions reached were not announced in a brief communique issued following the meeting, it is understood that United States officials expressed the intention of strengthening American military bases in the islands, and of aiding the Philippine Republic in the development of its armed forces.

President Elpidio Quirino presided at the conference. Other members of the Philippine delegation were Defense Secretary Ramon Magsaysay and the chiefs of the armed forces. Admiral Raymond A. Spruance, American ambassador, headed the United States delegation, which included Assistant Secretary of State John M. Allison, Deputy Secretary of Defense William C. Foster, and Admiral Arthur W. Radford, USN, Commanding the Pacific Fleet.

Reassure Uneasy NATO Members

THE Standing Group and North Atlantic Council of the North Atlantic Treaty Organization issued this week a reassuring communique for some of its uneasy members, stating explicitly once more that the organization strategy in-cludes "defense of the peoples and terri-tories for which NATO is responsible." The statement added that there are "no military grounds as yet for any slackening of the build-up of defensive forces, or the relaxation of effort."

It was a brief meeting, so far as the Standing Group was concerned, General Bradley being represented by his deputy, Bradley being represented by his deputy, Vice Adm. Arthur C. Davis, who is to return to Washington this weekend. The purpose of the deputy's trip to Paris, with Lt. Gen. Paul Ely and Air Chief Marshal Sir William Elliot, the other members of the Standing Group, was to attend to program-scheduling for the Military Committee which will assemble in Paris during the week before the prosession. in Paris during the week before the pros-pective Council meeting of 15 Dec. We must not expect too much of that meeting, because of its unfortunate but necessary timing. For, unlike last Janu-ary's corresponding Lisbon conference, where the entire planning for 1952 phases where the entire planning for 1952 phases could be considered by stable governments, the Paris meeting (which is optimistically designed to do some firm scheduling of 1953 contributions to the defense of the West) will be held in a quite different atmosphere. The American elections, to be sure, will have de-cided certain matters (just which and in what respect it is a bit risky to conjecture at this pre-election weekend) but the president-elect will still be a month away from inauguration and a very considerable distance away from his own firm decision (and that of a new Congress) on what the United States will promise NATO for 1953 and what it will ask of other members. Between the Herriot revolt (referred to last week) against the Pinay Government's plan for ratifying the European Defense Community, which is so important to NATO, and M. which is so important to NATO, and when Pinay's own indignation over American actions vis-a-vis French North Africa, the position on NATO matters which the French Government can take with any decisiveness at that time is equally in doubt. Add to this the obvious fact that Britain, France, and all the other members will have their own 1953 contributions to the common defense determined in some measure by the extent of pros-pective American assistance (which from the nature of things Ambassador Wil-liam H. Draper, jr., cannot pledge or even estimate with certainty) and it be-comes obvious that from the Paris meeting no such certainties as Lisbon's can emerge.

Yet nothing could be done to avoid

SERVICE NEWS AND GOSSIP

Russia Working on Vertical Rise Airplane—The Daily Express of London reported this week that the Red Air Force is experimenting with a jet interceptor airplane that takes off and lands vertically. Such an interceptor would need no landing field and also, by taking off directly upwards, would gain high altitude quicker than a plane which takes off from a runway and ascends at an angle. Group Capt. Hugh Dandas, air correspondent of the Daily Express, reported that the Russian interceptor is designated the CZ2B and is 54 feet long, has a wing span of 42 feet, is 21.7 feet high and weighs 3,874 pounds empty and 6,387 pounds loaded. The Germans are reported to have worked on a similar idea, but their experimental plane broke up in the air.

Marines Learn To Read—Personnel at Marine Corps Headquarters in Washington, D. C., are being trained in new techniques which are somewhat remote from their usual studies in the field of amphibious warfare—they're learning to read.

Special courses being conducted at HQMC in "Reading Improvement Training" are designed to improve the "eye habits" of Marines, increase the efficiency with which they read and file, and "decrease eye fatigue."

Both military and civilian personnel at the Headquarters are eligible for the course and priority in assignments is on an "RHIP" basis.

The course takes one hour every day for thirty workdays, and those who have already completed it have averaged an increase of 126 words per minute with a two per cent gain in comprehension.

U. S. Naval Academy—The Academy was host this week to Col. Pieter J. Van Gijn, prospective Commandant of the Royal Netherlands Marine Corps, who is in the United States on a two-month visit of U. S. Marine Corps facilities and East Coast installations. Colonel Van Gijn, who will become Major General Commandant of the Netherlands Royal Marines next year, was met by Capt. Robert T. Keith, Secretary of the Academic Board. He received the "March Past" of the Brigade and had luncheon in Bancroft Hall. During his tour, he also conferred with Capt. Charles A. Buchanan, Commandant of Midshipmen, and Comdr. Blake B. Booth, Head of the Academic Section, and had lunch with Capt. Benjamin P. Field, jr., CO of the U. S. Naval Station. He was escorted during his visit by Lt. Col. James A. Callendar, USMC.

Officers who have reported for duty at the Academy are: Capt. Donald J. MacDonald, Head, Department of Foreign Languages; Capt. William H. Johnsen, Industrial Relations Officer for the Academy and SRNC; Capt. Francis J. Foley, Head, Department of Mathematics; Capt. Howard G. Corey, Administrative Aide to the Superintendent and C/S of the SRNC; Lt. Col. James B. Glennon, jr., USMC, 1st Battalion Officer in the Executive Department.

Capt Walter H. Price has left the Academy to take command of the USS Newport News, and Capt. Francis R. Duborg has left to command the destroyer tender USS Hamul.

I Corps Amputee Fund In Korea—The I Corps Korean Children's Amputee Fund in Korea has passed the $66,000 mark—a tribute to the generosity of United Nations servicemen. The fund, originated by Lt. Gen. Paul W. Kendall, I Corps Commander, will be used to set up an Amputee Center at an established Korean hospital.

The idea for the fund stemmed from a visit by General Kendall last August to the Norwegian Mobile Surgical Hospital, then commanded by Col. Erling F. Hjort. There, he saw Chang Myong Sik, a 13-year-old Korean youngster who had been badly burned in a dud explosion and later had both hands amputated as a result. General Kendall decided something should be done to help war-mutilated Korean children like Chang and the Amputee Fund was his answer.

children like Chang, and the Amputee Fund was his answer.

The fund is administered by six senior I Corps staff officers: Col. Waino A. Lauri, Seattle, Civil Affairs Officer (chairman); Col. Rollin L. Bauchspies, MC, East Mauch Chunk, Pa., Surgeon; Col. Clifford F. Cordes, jr., Cincinnati, Staff Judge Advocate; Chaplain (Lt. Col.) Alvie L. McKnight, Cleveland, Miss., Chaplain; Lt. Col. Louis B. Besbeck, Los Angeles, Public Information Officer, and Lt. Col. Asbury D. Snow, Athens, Ga., Special Services Officer (custodian).

Mail Dependents' Checks—Class Q allotment checks for November for more than 500,000 dependents of Army personnel will be prepared and mailed from Indianapolis, Ind., it is announced by Maj. Gen. Bickford E. Sawyer, Army Chief of Finance.

The new mailing address for these checks, with a monthly aggregate value of about $45,000,000, results from the move of the Class Q Allotment Division from St. Louis, Mo., to Indianapolis.

The next few weeks will see a marked increase in the program of Finance Center movements from St. Louis to Indianapolis and Fort Benjamin Harrison. The move is now approximately 60 per cent completed. With the arrival of five more components in Indianapolis by mid-November, approximately 80 per cent of the Finance Center, U. S. Army, will be operating in downtown offices in Indianapolis or on the Post, awaiting completion of the huge new Army Finance Center. Acceleration of the move was necessary because of the need of the Ordnance Department of the property in St. Louis occupied by the Finance Center.

Slated to be on the move for the next few weeks are: Savings Bond Branch, Adjustment Division, Class Q Allotment Division, Dependency Division, and the remainder of the Disbursing Division.

The Savings Bond functions transferring from St. Louis will be integrated with the existing Bond Allotment Division in Building 95 at Fort Harrison. This movement began 16 Oct. and has now been completed. On 30 Oct., the Accounts Control and Mail and Preparation Branches of Class Q Allotment Division, plus the Mechanical Operations Branch of the Disbursing Division, will begin moving into three adjacent buildings at the State Fairgrounds. Again scheduled for a "round-the-clock" operation, outloading, transportation and unloading in the new quarters will be consummated by Monday, 3 Nov.

By mid-November, the remainder of the Class Q Allotment Division, all of Dependency Division, and the residue of Disbursing Division, will have moved from St. Louis to Indianapolis. A portion of Disbursing Division—Collections Branch—will be situated in the Bright Building, 111 S. Meridian, Indianapolis.

Approximately 350 civilian personnel are being transferred incident to these moves. The Finance Center Deputy for Allotment Operations also is moving his office into the Fairgrounds at Indianapolis from St. Louis at this time.

There is a good possibility this matter may receive attention of the MANPOWER COMMISSION in an on-the-spot investigation.

...Launched with much fanfare on Armistice Day, 1951, but recognized months ago as a flop, the drive to recruit 72,000 officers and enlisted personnel for the WOMEN'S SERVICES has failed to meet a critical need for nurses. Medical officials are concerned because the shortage is about 25% of current strength, with the Army short 900 nurses; Air Force, 700; and Navy, 1000. The situation MAY EVEN WORSE as Reserve tours expire. Involuntary recalls would be an answer, but are not considered likely. Stepped-up training of enlisted practical nurses will help some, but Service nurses will continue to carry heavy burden, apparently indefinitely. #

Milestone At AF Gateway—The 3702d Personnel Processing Squadron this week marked the assignment of the 5,000th officer, 2d Lt. James R. Holt, to be initiated into active duty at Lackland AFB, San Antonio, Texas. The Lackland unit was organized in January of 1951 to handle reserve officers and Air ROTC graduates ordered to begin extended duty tours from civilian life. Approximately 400 officers a month enter Air Force assignment through the squadron's Lackland gateway.

All receive brief refresher and orientation courses on military procedure and organization, complete service record entries, and are given job or training assignment throughout the Air Force based on results of a series of scientific aptitude tests.

Did It Boost NCO Prestige?—Apparently there is some doubt that the recent changes in the grade designation of airmen has helped increase the prestige of the top three-graders. According to an official Air Force publication, a study is in progress to determine whether the widely-heralded change was effective. The study is somewhat surprising in view of the careful planning behind the move to change the grade titles—for example, corporal to airman second class.

Officers...

Are you overseas or, are you going overseas?

Do you want automobile insurance that will cover in Japan and Western Europe, in Puerto Rico and in the Philippines, as well as in the States? We do not insure "everywhere" but we do follow our policyholders to many parts of the world-and what's more we have claims facilities in out-of-the-way places.

Write and tell us where you are or where you expect to go and we will tell you what we can do about your automobile insurance.

Research Rides a Rocket

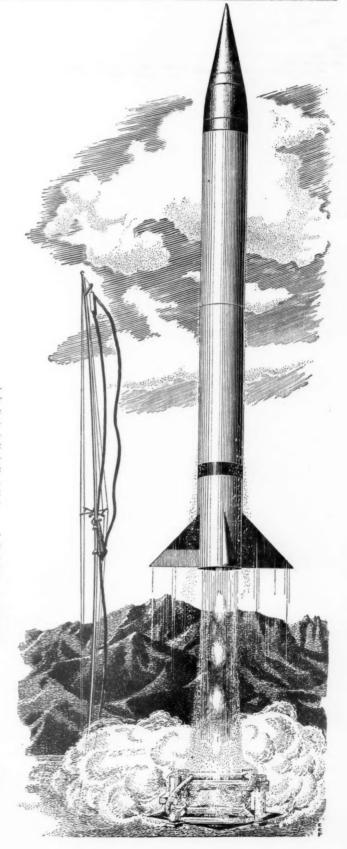

The Naval Research Laboratory's Viking rocket research at White Sands Proving Grounds, N. M., hunts facts, figures and formulas in the upper atmosphere.

URTLING far into the blue, Naval Research Laboratory rockets ask questions of the earth's upper atmosphere . . . flash back the answers needed to guide the designers of tomorrow's piloted and pilotless superaltitude systems for peace or war. What are the pressures and temperatures of the earth's atmospheric layers... the high-altitude changes in the earth's magnetic field affecting navigational instruments... the alterations in radio waves caused by the ionosphere . . the effects of sun spots on communications equipment out beyond the filtering effects of the earth's heavy atmosphere?

Martin Viking rockets play a major role in this highaltitude flight research program. Last summer, the Viking cracked the world's altitude record for singlestage rockets . . . nosing 136 miles into the heavens at a top speed of 4100 m.p.h. Now, an even more powerful Viking is being readied for launching. The Martin Company is proud to be a partner with the Naval Research Laboratory in these vital activities . . . helping to prove that America's most valuable secret weapon is its scientific leadership! THE GLENN L. MARTIN COM-PANY, Baltimore 3, Md.

Developers and Manufacturers oft: Navy P5M-1 Marlin seaplanes • Air Force B-57A Canberra night intruder bombers • Air Force B-61 Matador pilotless bombers • Navy P4M-1 Mercator potrol planes • Navy KDM-1 Plover target drones • Navy Viking high-altitude research rockets • Air Force XB-51 developmental tactical bomber • Martin airliners • Guided missiles • Electronic fire control & radar systems • Leaders in Building Air Power to Guard the Peace, Air Transport to Serve It.

to the E.E. or PHYSICS GRADUATE

with military experience

in RADAR OR ELECTRONICS

Here's a good way to capitalize on your military experience upon your return to civilian life: Hughes Research and Development Laboratories. one of the nation's leading electronics organizations. are now creating a number of new openings in an important phase of their operation.

Here is what one of these positions offers you:

THE COMPANY

Hughes Research and Development Laboratories are located in Southern California. We are currently engaged in the development of advanced radar systems, electronic computers, and guided missiles. You are probably familiar with some of the equipment we are supplying the services.

YOUR POSITION

You will serve as a technical advisor to those using Hughes equipment. In this capacity you would help insure the successful operation of our equipment in the field.

YOUR TRAINING

On joining our organization, you would work in our Laboratories in Southern California for several months-until you are thoroughly familiar with the equipment involved.

WHERE YOU WORK

After your period of training (at full pay), you may (1) remain at the company Laboratories in Southern California in an instruction or administrative capacity, (2) become the Hughes representative at a company where our equipment is being installed, or (3) be the Hughes representative at a military base in this country-or at a base overseas (single men only). Compensation is made for traveling and for moving household effects. Married men keep their families with them at all times.

YOUR FUTURE

You will gain broad experience that will increase your value to us as we further expand in the field of electronics. Furthermore, the large-scale commercial employment of electronic systems in the next few years is inevitable . . . and your training and experience in the most advanced electronic techniques with our company now will qualify you for even more important positions later.

HOW TO APPLY

If you are under thirty-five years of age, and if you have an E. E. or Physics degree, with some experience in radar or electronics.

the full Commission is named, work can be accelerated.

One of the new members of the Com-mission is the Rev, John C. Cavanaugh, former president of Notre Dame.

He was a member of the Hook Commission, whose report provided the basis mission, whose report provided the basis for the Career Compensation Act of 1949. Father Cavanaugh now has accepted a new call from the Department of Defense for service to the Nation.

He is a recipient of the National Military Establishment Certificate of Appreciation, awarded in 1949 for his service on the Hook Commission. In this work, Father Cavanaugh won the praise of the Armed Forces for his energetic and enlightened interest in problems affecting the welfare of military personnel and their families

His background experience on the Hook Commission undoubtedly will be a great asset in the forthcoming inquiry into the utilization of manpower.

In addition to Father Cavanaugh, other members of the Commission include Admiral John H. Hoover, USN-Ret.; Maj. Gen. John B. Anderson, USA-Ret.; and Maj. Gen. Merritt B. Edson, USMC-Ret. THE JOURNAL went to press, the retired Air Force general on the sion had yet to be designated. the Commis

the Army, Navy, Air Force and Marine Corps.
Additionally, each Service has been called upon to name a principal active duty liaison officer with the Commission. These officers are: Maj. Gen. Roger Browne, USAF; Brig. Gen. Herbert B. Powell, USA; Capt. Henry C. Bruton, USN; and Col. Cliff Atkinson, jr, USMC. Secretary of Defense Robert A. Lovett and Assistant Secretary Anna M. Rosenberg have appointed Maj. Gen. Merrill B. Twining, USMC, as Military Staff Director of the Commission. Executive sec-rector of the Commission. Executive secretary is Mr. Henry Herz of Mrs. Rosenberg's staff.

General Twining, the brother of General Nathan F. Twining, USAF Vice Chief of Staff, was especially selected for this assignment, according to Secretary Lovett and Assistant Secretary Rosenborg.

former Assistant Commander of the A former Assistant Commander of the lat Marine Division in Korea and recently Director of the Marine Corps Education-al Center at Quantico, Va., General Twining will be 50 years of age on 28 Nov. He is a 1923 graduate of the U. S. Naval Academy.

In 1925, he was detailed as a student Naval Aviator and in 1932 was graduated with a Bachelor of Law Degree from George Washington University in Washington, D. C.

From July 1935 to August 1936, he attended the Army Infantry School at Ft. Benning, Ga.

Benning, Ga.

In November, 1951, General Twining joined the First Marine Division at Camp Lejeune, N. C. While serving with the Division he was Commanding Officer, First Base Depot, and Assistant Operations Officer for the Division. In the later consists he was the Legisland Marit ter capacity, he won the Legion of Merit during the initial offensive of World War II at Guadalcanal. In July, 1943, General Twining served as Assistant Chief of Staff for Opera-tions and Training, First Amphibious Corps, then under the command of Gen-eral Alexander A. Vandegrift, USMC-

Ret. He returned to the United States Ret. He returned to the United States that November and became Chief of Operations and Training, Marine Corps Schools, Quantico, Va. In February, of the following year, he became Executive Officer, Marine Corps Schools, and subsequently a member of the Administrative Staff of the Schools.

In August 1950 General Twining was named Commanding General of the Marine Corps Training and Replacement Command at Camp Pendleton, Oceanside, Calif. He was promoted to brigadier gen-eral in September 1950, and in November 1951 was named Commanding General, Fleet Marine Force Troops, at Camp Pendleton. He joined the First Marine Division as assistant commander in March 1952 and served in that capacity until May 1952 when detached to the Na-val Medical Center, Bethesda, Md., for treatment.

Talented men with specialized experience were urgently needed during the early days of 1951, and it was during this period that scores of reservists-many of them holding important civilian positions in radio, journalism, advertising, educa-tion, and related fields—received hurry-tion, and related fields—received hurryup calls to active duty.

A curriculum was formulated, lesson plans were written, and regular class schedules commenced. The Psychological Warfare Division of the Army General
School, designed to train but 96 men a year, turned out 342 Psywar graduates in its first 11 months — men from all in its first 11 months — men from all branches of the United States military service as well as members of four NATO nations.

By the time the first officers' class had graduated in June 1951, several field units were training at the old Kansas Cavalry post. Shortly thereafter, additional units were activated, and, in time, two Radio post. Shortly Broadcasting and Leaflet Groups and two Loudspeaker and Leaflet Companies re-ceived overseas assignments to Europe and the Far East Command.

Center Established

Then, in April of 1952, Department of the Army formally activated The Psycho-logical Warfare Center at Ft. Bragg, N. C., to coordinate and consolidate the Army's psychological warfare field pro-gram in one central location with adequate materials and space to expand and develop these growing support weapons. Two months later, in June 1952, all of the Psywar elements still remaining at Fort Riley were transferred to the North Caromilitary post.

Basically, the Center is divided into four main phases of activity: Center Headquarters; the School; the Board; and field operating units.

The Psychological Warfare School is the only one of its type in the armed serv-ices. It is designed to instruct selected officers and enlisted men of the Army, Navy, Air Force, and Marines, and a few qualified individuals of other United States government agencies and Alhed armies. The students are trained to be specialists in propaganda, public opinion, and the conduct of sustained operations within and behind enemy lines for mili-tary purposes. The first officers' class un-der the Center is currently in session, and two new courses are tentatively scheduled to begin in November of this

There is no deficiency of experience among the members of the School faculty. Most of the men are battle-trained in their subjects and many have specialized civilian backgrounds.

One of the most significant phases of the School's work, done by men with years of practical experience in education, writing, military intelligence, and foreign languages and customs, is the preparation of Army field manuals, stu-dent summaries and training films bearing upon special forces operations and psychological warfare.

Seeking New Techniques

The third basic component of the Psychological Warfare Center is the Psychological Warfare Board. The Board con-ducts field and laboratory tests on the latest equipment designed for psychological warfare and special forces purposes New and better methods, techniques, and materials are continually being sought to facilitate the use of psychological warfare tools.

The fourth and final major phase of Center activity involves the field operating units which are being trained to take their place on the battlefield should the further need rise. The operating units stationed at the Center include a Radio Broadcasting and Leaflet Group, two Loudspeaker and Leaflet Companies.

In addition to the above, the Center has trained during summer five Organized Reserve Units in psychological war-fare. These units have home stations ranging from New York to Illinois to Florida.

Soldiers First

The officers and men of The Psycho-The officers and men of The Psychological Warfare Center's operating units are trained to be soldiers first and specialists second. But, as specialists, one would have to go a long way to find a group of individuals who, among them have such wide and varying qualifications and experience. These men speak write, and read more than 30 separate and distinct languages; have seen serviand distinct languages; have seen service in many foreign military forces; and hold bachelors, masters, and doctorate degrees from many of the world's leading colleges and universities. In addition to the outstanding linguists, there are psychologists, radio and electronics experts. pressman, printers, lithographers, pho-tographers, geographers and many other representatives of the scientific and professional world.

Role of Psychological Warfare

Essentially, psychological warfare is the use of propaganda and related measures to achieve national objectives. But in its broad military sense, psychological warfare includes any action taken primarily to affect the minds, emotions, and actions of the enemy and thereby lower his ability or will to resist.

The mission of psychological warfare.

The mission of psychological warfare, like any other weapon of war, is to help our troops accomplish their combat objectives. In this, the "psy-warrior" uses leaflets, air-drop newspapers, tank- and airplane-mounted loudspeakers, radios. artillery, gum, candy, and numerous other devices.

The Record

The United States, alone, air-dropped in excess of three billion propaganda leaf-lets in Europe during World War II. Along with these, continuing loudspeak-er and radio campaigns helped earn for psychological warfare the following praise from General of the Army Dwight D. Eisenhower. He said: "Without doubt psychological warfare has proved its right to a place of dignity in our military arsenal."

While admitting that it is very difficult indeed to measure the effectiveness of psychological warfare, it might be well worth pointing out that in June of this year, the United Nations Commander in the Far East published a review in which he credited psychological warfare with being a direct influence in the surrender of more than 65 per cent of the prisoners taken since the outbreak of hostilities in Korea. One of the units responsible for the continuing Psywar effort against the enemy in Korea was the 1st Loudspeaker and Leaflet Company, which has been on the fighting front for nearly two years. The 1st L&L Company is the first Psywar unit to be awarded the ROK Presidential Unit Citation.

More and more each month it is being recognized by high level military men that, as psychological warfare continues that, as psychological warrare continues to become an increasingly important factor in the scheme of national defense. the men and women who have been trained at The Psychological Warfare Center will emerge better equipped to serve their nation with this new weapon in the arsenal of freedom.

circumstance. For the extent American assistance is going to be determined in some measure by what takes place at the 15 December meeting. Fortunately next week's election of the next President cannot "go wrong" as to NATO relations, for both candidates support the principle of this all-important cooperation for defense. But it is Congress which determines the extent of our co-operation, and properly enough Congress will wish to know what our Allies are prepared to offer in the way of cooperation, conditional as it must be. In brief, the 15 December meeting is necessary for helping the United States to make its plan, and the later plan presumably will then make it necessary for the North Atlantic Council to hold another meeting, based on realities in Washington. We can hope for realities by that time in Paris and Bonn, and we can most earnestly hope for favorable realities in all three capitals.

Although the Standing Group's role in this end-of-October meeting was a brief one, the Council, of course, continues its work through the new staff under Lord Ismay at the Palais de Chaillot: this latter body is preparing in all detail the factual reports and the tenta-tive estimates of capability on which the mid-December meeting of the Council will have to act. In a different area cil will have to act. In a different area and under different auspices, yet with a closely related purpose, the Continental Constitution Commission (from France, Italy, West Germany and the Benelux countries) continues its own patient work toward the political union which it is appropriate to accessory. which it is apparent is necessary to any long-lived military union. It is pleasant to note the promptness with which Lord Layton, a Briton among the several representatives of non-participating states, corrected the impression of Guy Mollet, Socialist member of the French delegation, that Britain would oppose certain federalist aspects of the EDC planning. Lord Layton gave immediate assurance that Britain at least would have no obthat Britain at least would have no objection, and the planning proceeded. By coincidence on this same day, speaking at The Hague, Julian Amery, who has moderate influence in British Conservative matters, made n point of the necessity for full development of the European Defense Community (and of Britain's interest in it) not alone as a political and defense mechanism but bepolitical and defense mechanism but be cause of its relationship to the economic pool on one side and the whole principle of cooperation on the other. The problem of French support is still delicate, but no new ground was lost this week.

Our interceptor force in Europe is in process of being strengthened by the dispatch of F-86 Sabres to the 86th Fighter-Interceptor Wing in the German Palatinate, replacing the much-used Thunder Jets which that wing had been operating. A fortnight ago the Royal operating. A fortnight ago the Royal Canadian Air Force elements in Northern France received 300 of the new Canadian Sabres, almost identical with our own. The U. S. 81st Fighter-Interceptor Wing in Great Britain has had this equipment for some time. Announce-ment of the forthcoming improvement of the 86th's mounts was made by General Hoyt S. Vandenberg, Chief of Air Staff, during his halt at SHAPE in an early stage of his inspection tour around the world, which is destined to keep him way from Washington until mid-November.

Poland's "elections" to the first parliament under the new constitution took place this week with the triumphant success of all 425 official candidates of the Communist party. It was not exactly an upset of expectations, for no opposition candidacy was permitted. No Pole had to sit up all night to catch the returns, as we will be doing next Tuesday.

Americans en route by ship from the United States to Japan, or vice-versa— with a stop-over in the Ryukyus Com-mand on Okinawa— now are provided mand on Okinawa — now are provided with a new hospitality service. The pro-gram includes a sightseeing tour and baby-sitting service.

wives en route to join their husbands, officers, and civilians en route to other stations in the Far East will have an opportunity to break their long sea voyage. During their one-day stop-over, they will be afforded the chance to see how Americans live on the island which has become known as the "Gibraltar of the Pacific" the Pacific

the Pacific."

In order to enable mothers to participate, American teen-agers living on Okinawa with their parents, go aboard to take care of the traveling small-fry for a four- to five-hour period. Upon the completion of the new teen-age center on the island, it is planned to turn one room into a temporary nursery each time a ship arrives so that the youngsters also will be able to regain their land-legs for a short time

The idea for the project originated with Mrs. Robert F. Miller, wife of Lieutenant Commander Miller, whose perproject originated sonal experience prompted her to organ-ize a baby-sitting "squad."

Now the complete program is coordinated by Ryukyus Command Special Services, commanded by Lt. Col. Earle P. Schouten. Two bands, one Army and P. Schouten. Two bands, one Army and one Air Force, greet the travelers as they dock and Okinawan entertainers give an exhibition of traditional dances. Transportation is furnished by the Rycom Motor Command, with Staff Aides of the American Red Cross Volunteer Workers acting as guides on the tour.

The captain of the first ship for which the hospitality program was organized entered wholeheartedly into the spirit of good will. A picnic and baseball games on a nearby beach were promptly planned for all troops aboard. Also, the troops and all other personnel on board each ship stopping in Okinawa are provided the opportunity of calling any of their friends who may be stationed on the island through ship-to-shore tele-phone service, provided by the Ryukyus Command Signal Service. This was insti-tuted early in 1952 by Col. William A. Beasley shortly after he assumed duties as Rycom Signal Officer.

Service Officials Tell Role of Transport Industry

The military establishment's dependence upon the civil transportation industry in time of emergency was emphasized by high-ranking officers of the Defense Department as more than 600 delegates and members of the National Defense Transportation Association opened their three-day Annual Convention in New York City on 27 Oct.

Assistant Secretary of the Army Francis Shackelford told the meeting that with the U. S. Army "deployed over the face of the world—with forces located on nine major islands or island groups and in 49 countries on six continents" the transportation burden is heavy.

"The fiscal year 1952 cargo shipments represent almost a 50 per cent increase over Army shipments during the year immediately preceding the Communist aggression in Korea and are approximately shipments during World War II.
Within the United States, he p out that almost 100 per cent of the ments are made by commercial and during fiscal year 1952 approximates 85 per cent of the Department of fense's cargo was shipped overs commercial bottoms

"What is the value of high speed ships trains and aircraft if the administrative procedures involved in our logistic tems are permitted to cause unnecess delays," he said.

Need Oil Tankers

Rear Adm. George R. Cooper, USN, sistant Chief of Naval Operations (Lotics), called for an active and vigor construction program for oil tankers.

"Current building programs within the U.S. are well behind those of other leading maritime nations and are inadequate to replace over-age ships and to keep up with increasing world tanker requirements," he said.

During the afternoon session the delegates heard panel discussions on the problems of "Warehousing and Storage in Transit" and "Port Utilization." Two automobiles parked beneath the cockpit of the Howard Hughes XH-17 emphasize the dimensions of the world's largest helicopter. Rotor blades extend more than 125 feet and over-all height of the machine is more than 30 feet. The XH-17 made its first test flight 23 Oct. at Culver City, Calif., and is expected to be the forerunner of large cargo-carrying helicopters designed to deliver such heavy equipment as artillery, trucks, and bridge sections. Built as a ground test model by the Hughes Aircraft Company under a development contract with the Air Force's Air Research and Development Command, the XH-17 has been converted into a flight model following satisfactory tests of the jet-powered rotor mechanism. It is powered by two modified turbojets, developed and built by General Electric, supplying gas pressure through ducts leading up the rotor shaft and out to the tips of the rotor blades. The big helicopter was originally designed to Air Force specifications by Kellett, from whom the Hughes Co. subsequently purchased development rights.

Helicopter in War

Helicopter design has advanced to the point where rotary-wing aircraft can eliminate many terminal delays and speed the shipment of fighting supplies to the front, the National Transportation Association meeting in New York City was told 28 Oct., by Frank N. Piasecki, chairman of the board of Piasecki Helicopter Corp.

He said military experience has proven what the helicopter can do and stimu-

what the helicopter can do and stimu-lated engineering advances until pay-loads today are 15 times greater than they were 10 years ago, range is six times greater and cruising speeds have doubled.

"The helicopter," Mr. Piasecki declared,
"can make three contributions toward speeding up the movement of men and materials essential to national defense. It can go places no other vehicle can reach, it can expedite trans-shipment between rail, highway, air and ocean vehicles and it can provide faster service than even the airplane on hauls up to 350 miles in length.

Piasecki said helicopters capable of lifting two tons now are on the production line for the Air Force and Army and that bigger ones are coming. His company is building an experimental 40-passenger helicopter for the Air Force that will fly in a few months.

"The O.D. Wins"

The New York Times has taken editorial recognition of the Army's decision to reexamine the problem of a possible new uniform, after apparent dissatisfaction with field tests of the greenish-gray uni-form. The Times comments in an editorial form. The Times comments in an editorial billed "The O.D. Wins."

"A touch of nostalgia for the old days, when we had a standing Army, and largely the Army had nothing to do but stand, underlies the evident regret that the Defense Establishment has found it impossible to change the peacetime uniform from olive drab to gray-green. The situation is the more regrettable since olive drab is no longer worn in combat and there is no really good reason, except the economic one, why the boys in blue should not again appear on our streets. As things are, the sailors and Marines in their dress blues are the only fighting men we have who remind us of the more colorful days of old, "This shift really indicates a change in the whole art of war—or rather a change in war.

"This shift really indicates a change in the whole art of war—or rather a change in war itself from being an art to being a deadly science. When armies were professional, when battles were infrequent, and when high visibility was considered an ald to morale, the soldier could dress like a rainbow. But this sort of masquerading passed as more men were drawn into the fighting services and as modern war became not only more dangerous but infinitely more dreary than any preceding kind of warfare. We know war for what it is now, hideous and horrible and only to be endured because slavery and dishonor are worse. Whatever glamour there was in military paraphernalia has to be sought for now in the ranks of parading fraternal organizations."

Editorially, The Journal has urged repeatedly that the Army stick with the present uniform, particularly during the emergency period. This position was taken when the Army first announced in September 1951 that it would test a

Proxy Marriage

According to a recent Comptroller General's decision proxy marriages are valid when performed in the United States wherever common-law marriages are sanctioned, and an officer who is a party to such a marriage is entitled to an increase in quarters allowance on account of having a lawful wife if otherwise entitled thereto.

The decision (B-111192) was rendered in the case of 1st Lt. Leo Baggett, Head-quarters Co., 6230th R.C., Fort Ord, Calif. The official digest of the decision follows:
"In view of the current disposition of Federal and State courts to recognize the validity of proxy marriages if performed in a jurisdiction where a proxy marriage." in a jurisdiction where common-law marriage is sanctioned, unless proxy mar-riages are prohibited by statute or have been held invalid by judicial decision, an officer who while stationed outside the continental limits of the United States executed a power of attorney constituting and appointing another person to act in his place and stead in a marriage ceremony in Texas is entitled to increased quarters allowance on account of a lawful wife, if otherwise entitled thereto."

Air Minelaying Techniques

Five Navy flag officers recently climbed into the cockpits of a group of Martin P4M Mercators (long range patrol and P4M Mercators (long range patrol and minelaying planes) at the Naval Air Test Center, Patuxent River, Md., to observe the latest developments in high-speed aerial minelaying tactics. They were: Rear Admirals T. S. Combs, Arleigh A. Burke, Richard W. Ruble, Frank Akers and Alfred M. Pride.

The top-ranking officers rode in the Mercators as the planes—all of VP-21, commanded by Comdr. A. A. Barthes—made short field take-offs, and high speed wave-top approaches and drops. They also observed a maximum load delivery of practice mines in a precision pattern in Chesapeake Bay.

Naval Reservists Skip Period in Training

Naval Reserve officers who have been released from active duty, other than training, during the present emergency, will be permitted to postpone training leading to retirement or promotion credits.

In making the announcement late last week, the Navy said such officers "will not be required to begin earning retirement or promotion credits under the Naval Reserve program until the begin-ning of the second fiscal year following the year in which they were released." could mean a delay of 12 to 24 months.

The ruling, the Navy pointed out, is a temporary exemption from the "lack-ofprogress" rule in the Reserve program.

In addition, the Navy said that officers approaching 20 years of satisfactory service will not be transferred to the Inactive Status List before they are offered "every practicable opportunity to meet the standard set by the Naval Reserve

This means that officers credited with 18 years of satisfactory service will be retained in an eligible status for an additional three years to permit completion of the last two years of the required 20, provided they are not otherwise disqualified under existing regulations.
